

having its own individual shut-off valve, should there ever be an emergency situation, coach owners can easily shut water off to the affected area, yet maintain water service in the rest of the coach. Since all waterlines are seamless, with no elbows or joints, directly running from the manifold in the water bay to the appropriate appliance or fixture creates less potential for water leaks.

Another example is the Jump Start feature, which was designed to combine the charged house batteries with the depleted coach batteries so you can jump start your coach pack. Even if both your coach and house batteries are depleted, the system can combine the generator power as well, getting you back on the road in no time. These are just a couple of ways Marathon ensures your every coach experience is memorable for all the right reasons.

10. What kind of service are you looking for?

Marathon continues to cater to our owners' interests long after a coach is purchased with personalized service, repair and remodeling available at our three locations across the country and with Marathon Coach mobile service. A specialized technical support staff is readily available for troubleshooting or to ask questions. In addition, after-hours support is available for emergency situations.

With a Marathon Coach, you are never far away from service and help. Marathon provides three locations nationwide for support and service. In addition, technical support staff are available and even after-hours support is available for emergency situations.

The same design and engineering staff that create new one-of-a-kind coaches for our valued clients are available for upgrades and remodeling. This ensures that the same detailed attention is given to our clients at any stage of their coach's long life. Whatever your coach needs, Marathon is committed to providing the exceptional service you deserve. □
